Vox Wireless names Phil Landow as new company President

Toronto, Canada – May 1, 2007 – Today, Vox Wireless, a Microsoft Certified Partner, headquartered in Toronto, Canada, was pleased to announce the appointment of Phil Landow as the new President of the company. Mr. Landow's appointment marks a reinvigorated effort to sustain the company's momentum in establishing a sales and services presence all across Canada. In his new position, Mr. Landow will work closely with the senior management team to continue to strengthen the customer service and account management capabilities region by region, making each Vox Wireless regional office capable of sustaining new business growth and maintaining superior customer service. In addition, Mr. Landow will be responsible for providing leadership over numerous new product development efforts that are intended to fill out product and professional services gaps in the Microsoft Dynamics CRM solution, including customer portal technology for improved document management, as well as implementation project repository and project management solutions for rapid implementation success. Mr. Landow will also be responsible for evaluating and executing new business development initiatives, including business acquisitions that support the overall Vox Wireless business plan.

"Phil brings a tremendous amount of industry and business experience to our expanding organization", according to Jim Heaton, CEO, Vox Wireless, "and I am confident he will be able to make significant contributions very quickly. Ultimately, his charter will be to ensure we continue to sustain our revenue growth rate with sales and services, as well as our ability to deliver services on-time and on-budget."

Mr. Landow's experience includes:

- Vice President of American Operations for SSA Global, where he managed both the direct and indirect channel sales and service organizations, and provided leadership on the acquisition and integration of new business units.
- Chief Executive Officer for Allinson-Ross Corporation, growing annual revenue by 20% and expanding the company footprint through acquisitions and the establishment of a VAR channel in Europe.
- Director of North American Sales and Marketing at Sietec Open Systems, a division of Siemens, managing North American Operations.
- Vice President of Canadian Operations for Geac Computer Corp., managing all sales and professional services operations across Canada.
- Vice President of Operations at Jonas & Erickson Software Technology, developing and selling accounting and ERP software to the SMB market with corporate revenue of $60 million.
